Question and Answer Day In $2,300 Proverb Game

Many Intelligent Questions Indicate Great Interest in Contest, With Its 30 Cash Prizes.

BY THE PROVERB CONTEST EDITOR.

Readers who are following The Constitution's proverb picture contest, which will make them richer by $2,300, may always feel at liberty to ask questions about any phase of this interesting game. The proverb editor may be consulted by calling at the office of The Constitution, by mail, through this column, or by telephone. Of course, only reasonable questions should be submitted, and he cannot assist contestants by suggesting the answers for any of the pictures—nor will he give out special information to any individual reader.

Over the week-end a number of questions of general interest were asked, and they are reproduced and answered here:

Questions and Answers.
Question: "In some way I have misplaced picture No. 23 of the proverb contest. I am inclosing a self-addressed envelope. Will you please send me this picture? Mrs. R. S. Roanoke, Ala."

Answer: We will gladly mail you picture No. 23 if you will send us 5 cents, and an additional 2 cents for postage.

Question: "I want to know if the correct answers to the 80 proverb pictures that will be published are in the list of 2,000 proverb you sent me. If they are in the list, say so, and if not, say so. There wasn't to be any money spent going into this contest, but it seems different now. Please let me hear from you, because I want to keep up with the pictures as they come out. B. H. T., Thunder, Georgia."

Answer: Thank you for your letter. A notice, printed in italics in the lower right-hand corner of page 3 of the list of 2,000 proverbs, which you have clearly set forth the fact that many, but not all, of the correct answers for the series of pictures may be found there. You can win this contest without spending a penny. There are no subscriptions to get, and you need not even be a subscriber to The Constitution. There is nothing to buy. It is true, of course, that, at the suggestion of a number of contestants, The Constitution has made available the book, "Proverbs of All Ages," at the nominal price of 50 cents. "Proverbs of All Ages" was used by the artist in getting up the 80 pictures, and therefore has all of the 80 solutions. However, it has been painstakingly pointed out in this column that contestants are not asked to buy the book. The Constitution has simply arranged to supply it to those who want a book of this kind, purely as a matter of accommodation. It is possible to win the contest without the aid of "Proverbs of All Ages," by referring to the list of 2,000 proverbs, which has the answers for the first 25 pictures and many others, and by recalling familiar proverbs.

Question: "Does being a resident of Paris prevent me from being eligible for the proverb contest? Miss M. K., Paris, France."

Answer: I'm sorry, but you are not eligible.

Question: Our contest entries will be easier and easier to handle if pasted on pages and bound in some sort of a book. In doing this, will it be all right to cut off the lower part where we are supposed to put our name, and put our name on the cover? Or must we put our name on every picture regardless of how sent in? Please answer through The Constitution, as many others wish to come separated from a set. Should a page or picture not bearing the contestant's name and address be counted separately, the checkers would be unable to replace it. Also, it is not required that the pictures be bound and pasted in a book, although they are acceptable in those forms.

Negro's Lifetime Hoard Of $900 Taken by Thugs
Lifetime savings of Alfred Person, 60-year-old, negro, of 50 Fort street, amounting to $900, were taken late Sunday night by two negroes who beat him with a gun after a bullet narrowly missed him, according to police. George Walker, negro, of the Bedford Place address, is in Grady hospital with a wound in the left side following his arrest in the case. Walker was shot by Lonnie Glover, 17, negro, of 38 Fort street, who heard the shot at Person and came to his aid with a gun, police said. Walker, who is under guard at the hospital, is said to have given police the name of the other negro, who got away with the money.

Question: In the event of a tie for prize money in the proverb contest, will there be a split of the money in that particular place, or will each contestant with the same score receive the full award? In other words, if there were three persons rating first prize of $1,000, would that amount be split three ways, or would each of the three receive $1,000? M. D. R., Brookhaven, Ga.

Answer: Should three contestants with an equal number of correct answers tie for the first prize of $1,000, and all have met the provisions of the contest, each will receive $1,000. The $1,000 will not be split among them.

Question: "Will you please advise me if proverbs like the enclosed will be acceptable in your contest? I would not like to fix them this way unless I knew it would be permissible. E. Y. Thomson, Ga."

Answer: Yes, pictures that are pasted on a sheet are acceptable. Question: "Do you realize that frequently there are several proverbs

$2,300 for Old Sayings

Or a copy of this interesting list may be had by mail by writing to the Proverb Editor, The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., and enclosing a two-cent stamp for return postage.

MAGICIANS' SOCIETY HONORS RAYMOND

Strange things were done at the Biarciff road home of Asa G. Candier Jr. Sunday night when the Atlanta Society of Magicians entertained the Great Raymond, internationally known conjurer who is appearing this week at the Fox theater.

Following a supper, two score or more guests were treated to a program replete with things most amazing to the layman, not so amazing to the amateur magicians, and entertaining to all.

A. G. DeVaughn, Homer Hulse, Dr. P. E. Van der Veer, Dr. Richard Daly and Mr. Candier were the Atlantans who showed their skill. Mr. Raymond recounted some of his experiences on his numerous world tours and did a few tricks. Walter Gibson, of Philadelphia, who is traveling with Mr. Raymond, also entertained with legerdemain and Mrs. Raymond offered several harp solos and songs. Sherwood Blodgett acted as master of ceremonies.

Fred Coledge Jr. is the recently elected president of the Atlanta society, succeeding Julian Boehm. Dr. Cecil Stockard is vice president and Mr. De Vaughn, secretary and treasurer.

M'DONALD OPENS CAMPAIGN TODAY

SEAHAM, DURHAM, England, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The grimy villages of the Durham coal fields will be the center of attention of the British general election campaign tomorrow, when Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, with a touch of the drama that has characterized his political life, flies from London to open his campaign for re-election to the house of commons from the constituency of Seaham Harbor.

COMMUNITY THEATER OPENS SEASON TONIGHT

First Offering of Series by Local Group Will Be 'Ariadne,' 3-Act Comedy.

Everything was in readiness Sunday for the premiere presentation to-night of the newly-organized Community theater's winter season opening play, "Ariadne," the first of a series of dramatizations to be staged here this winter. Tonight's play, a three-act comedy, will attract hundreds of Atlantans eager to witness the result of months of preparation on the part of players of the opening feature.

The performance will get under way promptly at 8:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club, and on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings "Ariadne" will be repeated, the curtain rising at the same hour. In addition, the Community theater players on Tuesday afternoon at 5:30 will present the delightful play, "Followers," over Station WSB, inaugurating its regular weekly radio play feature.

Mayor James L. Key, one of the strongest indorsees of the efforts of the theater, will be present at tonight's premiere, and will officially welcome on behalf of the city, the new thespian group, which is composed entirely of local talent. The work is being directed by Janet Mills Shepherd, who has had years of experience in handling amateur plays. Members of the cast of "Ariadne" are Dorothy Stokes, leading lady; Marion Camp, James Reese, Ruth Drew, Adele Anderson, Fred Brigan and Edith Walthall.

Purposely Run Over By Unlighted Auto, Officer Badly Hurt

As the result of a deliberate attempt on his life made by traffic law violators, Patrolman N. H. Timmons was taken to Grady hospital late Sunday night with injuries that may prove serious.

On duty at the intersection of Whitehall street and Murphy avenue, the patrolman noticed an automobile traveling south on Whitehall at a rapid rate of speed. The machine bore no lights. Timmons stepped into the street and, using his flashlight as a signal, attempted to flag the automobile to a stop.

It was occupied by several negroes, he said, and instead of obeying his directions to stop, the driver of the car headed directly for him. The policeman endeavored to side-step the machine, but the driver zig-zagged directly in the steps of the retreating officer, running him down.

Patrolman Timmons was left lying in the street, the car speeding south on Whitehall. At the hospital it was determined that he had received multiple fractures of the left ankle, probably internal injuries and numerous cuts and bruises about the head.

TALLULAH STARS IN NEWEST TALKIE

It is beginning to dawn upon us just why Tallulah Bankhead had to go to England to become a star on the stage after tasting failure in New York. The English are slow to appreciate or condemn things and Tallulah stayed long enough to prove her worth. She's doing just that in the talkies.

Tallulah's first American film, a terrible bit of junk called "The Tarantula Lady," was shown here some time back. One had to be awfully kind to find any good points in it, even though the desire to think the best was very deep. It looked like the talkie producers were doing their utmost to ruin Miss Bankhead before she got started.

However, her second picture, "My Sin," which is at Keith's Georgia this week, gives her a fine opportunity to do her stuff and this she does, despite a somewhat old and abused plot. Miss Bankhead's voice, which was the only asset as the "Tarantula Lady," again wins her distinction, but her general demeanor and excellent display of both the girl in a Panama honky tonk and a New York interior decorating shop shows that she can do most any kind of role.

The story concerns a girl who has let herself get in the mire so deep that she finds herself "lost" in a quagmire in the semi-tropics where a not-so-good husband lives on her earnings. She is accused of killing the husband, but a derelict lawyer wins her acquittal and a job for herself which nets him enough to stake her to passage to New York. There she reforms and becomes a success as an interior decorator, only to have persons

Brewster Bares Wreck of Romance
Despite Firm Denial by Corliss

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The 10-year-old romance of Eugene X. Brewster, formerly wealthy magazine editor, and beautiful Corliss Palmer, of Georgia, which ran a course from a New York mansion to a Hollywood cottage and bankruptcy, was declared hopelessly ended today by Brewster.

He was referred to as "Brewster's Millions," elaborated today on the cause he holds responsible for his separation from the girl he met 10 years ago after she had won a beauty contest conducted by one of his motion picture magazines.

He summed the reasons as difference in age and desire for dissimilar careers. The situation contains no third person, he said.

Miss Palmer, who for the last four months has been living in a Hollywood apartment with her mother, Mrs. Julia Palmer, was cautious in her comment on Brewster's statement. She disclaimed knowledge of a permanent separation.

"I know nothing of any plans for a divorce," she said. "My mother was ill and I came here to take care of her." Then she added cryptically, "If Mr. Brewster says we are separated, he will have to sell me a bill of goods."

Brewster's position in bankruptcy last August, and the auctioning of his handsome home and art objects here, was the culmination of a long series of misfortunes that reduced him from large wealth.

Brewster was introduced to Miss Palmer in New York in October, 1921, after she had won a nationwide beauty contest by vote of motion picture fans and had been proclaimed "The Georgia Peach."

The publisher and his first wife, Mrs. Eleanor W. Brewster, were divorced in 1926 when she sued Miss Palmer for $200,000, charging alienation of affections. She won the suit and Brewster was said to have paid a large amount.

He and Miss Palmer were first married in 1928 at Ensenada, Mexico, but to insure against attacks on the legality of that ceremony they were married again in California last March 18.

Their separation began in June, and on August 6 Brewster started bankruptcy proceedings, listing liabilities of $17,396 and assets of $500.

Brewster, now dependent on his income as an author's agent, and hopeful of profit from his book, "A Cure for the Depression," talked freely today.

He said the separation was agreed on when it became necessary for him to enter bankruptcy last summer, but he denied that lack of money was a factor in changing their relations.

"It is possible," he went on, "that the matter of divorce will come up later. Whatever Miss Palmer says, you may say for me that we are separated."

"Corliss is a thoroughbred. She comes from the south, where people are reared to be thoroughbreds, and she would stick to the bitter end if money was the only consideration."

"But she is ambitious for a career in motion pictures, and I know that she has lost roles to lesser artists because she was married."

"I think it better that I, too, be alone. Corliss is in her twenties while I am not so young, and of course our tastes are divergent. She wanted gaiety in the evening while I preferred to remain at home, studying and working."

"Corliss is a fine actress as well as a beauty, and I am confident she has a brilliant future which she can realize more rapidly alone. I also find that I can do my work easier and more quickly now that we are separated."

"We remain the best of friends. We see each other two and three times a week. I know that if I needed her she would help me."

NEW AERIAL GIANT TO BE CHRISTENED

Mrs. Hoover To Participate at Naming of Amphibion Plane Today.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP)—A giant airliner, America's largest flying boat and the world's largest amphibion, will be christened the "American Clipper" tomorrow by Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

For the second time within two months, the first lady of the land will sponsor gigantic products of the nation's aeronautic talent. First it was the U. S. S. Akron, lighter-than-air queen of the skies, and now it will be a Sikorsky S-40.

Mrs. Hoover will christen the S-40 with a bottle of sea water from the Caribbean, over which the big plane will fly in regular service for Pan-American Airways.

The ceremonies will begin at 2:30 p. m., with Juan T. Tripp, president of Pan-American Airways, presiding. Other speakers will include Orestes Ferrara, Cuban ambassador; Postmaster-General Brown and Representative Kelly, Pennsylvania, and Wood, Indiana.

Designed primarily as a flying boat, the S-40 has an auxiliary gear for land take-offs and landings. It has a cruising range of nearly 1,000 miles with 24 passengers and of 500 miles with 40 people aboard; a single wing of 114-foot span, beneath which are slung four engines developing 2,300 horsepower.

In the boat hull are quarters for a crew of four, five passenger cabins, a smoking room, compartments for mail and express and a miniature kitchen.

The ship has its own heating system, hot and cold running water, electric refrigerator and stove, and near the exits are life boats which may be inflated from compressed air tubes. The boats carry oars, a mast and sail, and emergency rations sufficient for several days.

The American Clipper will be the first of two similar ships to fly international trade routes.

The christening ceremony will be broadcast over both nationwide radio systems.

ROAD CONTRACT SUIT TO BE DECIDED TODAY

LOUISVILLE, Ga., Oct. 11.—(AP) Judge R. N. Hardeman said tonight he will give an opinion tomorrow in the case of the Whitley Construction Company against the state highway board, et al., based on allegations that the highway board "manipulated" four road contracts on which the Whitley company claims to have been the low bidder, and shifted the contracts to another company.

Hearing of the case in chambers was completed about midnight last night. Judge Hardeman will go to Swainsboro tomorrow to open the October term of court there and he will be occupied with court business in the circuit for several weeks. He said tonight, however, that he considers the suit against the highway board of too great importance to delay giving his opinion.

The Whitley company on October 1 obtained a temporary injunction against any further carrying out of the contracts involved, alleging that the taxpayers of the state had lost more than $10,000 through the highway board's deals to other bidders. The plaintiff charged that B. P. McWhorter, highway engineer, had participated in a "conspiracy to give the contracts to another company."

Paving projects in four counties, Bulloch, DeKalb, Polk and Brooks, totalling about 25 miles, were in question. The Whitley company's petition set forth that its bid was $10,478.94 lower than those of the J. B. McCreary Engineering Company and the Davis Construction Company, both of Atlanta, to whom the awards were made.

DEPUTIES CAPTURE FUGITIVE BANDIT

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 11.—(AP) Grady Reynolds, convicted bank bandit, who escaped September 27 from Wetumpka prison, near Montgomery, was captured here early today while asleep at the home of his wife by a posse of deputy sheriffs.

Reynolds later in the day was taken to Kilby prison in Montgomery under heavy guard. Officers making the capture said Reynolds offered no resistance.

Reynolds was sentenced to 35 years in prison for participation in the robbery in 1926 of the Bank of Springville, at Springville, in which three bandits escaped with $1,500. The trio later was captured in a gun-battle with police.

ONE KILLED AS TRAIN PLUNGES INTO RIVER

PALATKA, Fla., Oct. 11.—(AP)—One trainman was drowned when the engine and four cars of an Atlantic Coast Line freight plunged from an open drawbridge into the St. Johns river at Buffalo Bluff, six miles south of here today.

The trainman was R. P. Torrence, of Sanford.

The fireman jumped just as the engine passed onto the trestle and escaped serious injury.

Witnesses said a boat had just passed through the draw and the cause of the failure of the train to stop has not been determined. The river where the engine and four cars sank was said to be between 45 and 50 feet deep.

EX-DRY AGENT

SLAIN IN CELL

Former Official, Held on Dry Charge, Killed by Unknown Gunman.

EVARTS, Ky., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Five hours after being placed in jail here on a charge of drunkenness, Oscar Simpson, 41, former dry agent, was found shot to death early today. Officials said three shots were fired by an unknown gunman who entered the jail building and fired at Simpson as he slept in a cell.

Simpson was lodged in jail last night by Berle and Mose Middleton, Evansville policemen. Early this morning when the night officer made his rounds of the jail he found Simpson dead on the cot in his cell. He had been shot three times, one bullet penetrating his heart.

Following an inquest, Coroner Robert Farmer ordered the arrest of J. G. Cox, Evansville, in connection with the shooting. The coroner was told Cox and Simpson quarreled yesterday. Cox was taken to Harlan and questioned. He denied responsibility for the shooting.

A woman living near the jail told the coroner she heard three shots and saw a man in shirt sleeves run from the jail building.

Simpson was married and lived at Loyall, near here. He had been a dry agent in this section of the state for some time but his friends said he had not been connected with the prohibition forces for several months.

LIQUIDATION SOUGHT FOR BANK OF U. S.
NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—A reorganization plan which proposes to pay depositors of the closed Bank of United States in full within 18 months has been submitted to Joseph A. Brodick, state superintendent of banks, by Samuel Untermyer, attorney, and Wallace Groves, financier.
The plan calls for the incorporation of a "bank liquidation corporation," with a capital consisting of 50,000 shares of $100 par value and 50,000 shares of no-par value. Groves would pay $2,000,000 in cash for 20,000 shares of each type of stock.

The state banking superintendent then would sell the liquidation company the assets of the Bank of United States with the understanding that full liabilities of the defunct bank would be taken care of by the company.

REAL PUNCH PACKED BY "SUSAN LENOX"

"Susan Lenox" packs a potent box-office punch in weary-eyed Greta Garbo, the Swedish siren, and Clark Gable, dynamic young favorite who has been catapulted to fame in the past few months by the cumulative effect of millions of feminine heart throbs.

As might be expected, the drama at the Fox tells the story of a great love. The awakening of this monumental emotion brings happiness to a bashful Scandinavian lass and a rising young engineer. The subsequent vicissitudes of the passion reduce both parties through several sordid stages to the nadir of the social scheme. From this point the erstwhile courtesan stages a stirring comeback and finally forces the object of her affections to agree with her that the only hope for each lies in a life together.

Both stars live up to their respective traditions and should add millions of thrills to the sum total already evoked by their previous efforts. They are well supported by Jean Hersholt and John Miljan. Some of the photography is fascinating in its bizarre treatment of perspective. The great Raymond delights all hands by conjuring vegetable, animal and mineral units out of thin air and back again, into the same medium with great abandon and verve. He is ably assisted in this intriguing pursuit by a flock of Sunkist dancing girls.

Al Evans celebrates the completion of his first year at the console of the big organ by bringing into play the hands as well as the vocal cords of his huge audience. The former record a well-deserved tribute of applause to the popular song leader and jester while the latter contribute the usual lustrous raveling to brighten the evening and free repressed musical desires.

Enrico Leide's overture "Spirit of Gridiron," with the "Fox Eleven" on the stage, is particularly timely and tuneful.

Autumn Weather In Store for City

Typical autumn weather is the general outlook for Atlanta and its vicinity today and tonight, according to the United States weather bureau here. Temperatures today will match those of Sunday, and skies will be clear. A range of 60 to 75 degrees may be expected, it was said.
Sunday's pleasant weather caused thousands of Atlantans to motor out along highways leading through nearby rural sections, where richly-colored leaves gave a true autumnal appearance to the hills and valleys. It is believed the foliage this year is more brilliantly colored than in several years, due to the lack of moisture occasioned by droughty conditions.

The Story of Morrow's Life—A Tale of Accomplishment

(This is the seventh chapter in a series giving a detailed story of the life and accomplishments of Dwight W. Morrow, late senator from New Jersey.)

BY MARY MARGARET McBRIDE.
(Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

Dwight Morrow did his share both in the United States and Europe during the World War. It was by his quick and broad grasp of needs and the way to meet them that he laid the foundation for a national reputation as an organizer and harmonizer.

When, six months after the United States had entered the war, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo appointed Mr. Morrow director of the national war savings committee for New Jersey, he cheerfully took on that obligation.

He was determined New Jersey should lead in this patriotic effort. He associated some of the principal men of the state with him, and all joined heartily in a campaign not merely to preach the buying of war stamps and consequent saving of money, but to influence everyone to stop using anything that might be needed by the fighting forces.

An incident just after the war stamp work got under way illustrates the part played in Mr. Morrow's success by his talent for winning people in spite of themselves.

Not Well Known.

He had gone to a state where he was not well known to address a national organization on war savings stamps. When the time for him to speak came, the not very efficient chairman said: "We're now going to hear from—" (hesitating and turning to Mr. Morrow) "I beg your pardon, what is the name? Oh, yes, Mr. Morrow of the—I beg your pardon, what is the committee?—on the subject of—I beg your pardon, what is the subject?"

Such an introduction was not the best a speaker could ask. But such was Mr. Morrow's enthusiasm and magnetism that before he had talked many minutes men and women who had thought they were not interested in war savings stamps and had been gathering their wraps to depart settled back. When he finally stopped, the audience shouted for him to go on.

The Morrow policy was to teach the public that the war could be won only if materials and labor were sent to the front in quantity and with speed. That meant individual self-denial.

"Go Without."

"Go without if you intend to win," he exclaimed; persistently he hammered home the message that if non-

fighters kept on using supplies needed by the fighters, no battle could be won. With an enemy 5,000 miles across the seas, not near one's door, it was more than the work of a day to establish the imperative need for self-sacrifice.

Morrow made the issue personal by pointing out that savings would mean insurance against sickness and unemployment, twin spectres that haunt every human being. He explained too, that money deposited with savings banks or with insurance companies in the form of premiums would ultimately serve the uses of the United States as well as though used to purchase stamps.

This was a new idea. Mr. Morrow's own, and at first not entirely in accord with the selling campaigns conducted in many other states. It had an immediate influence, however, for not only did New Jersey take its full quota of stamps, but savings banks promptly reported sudden increases in deposits and insurance companies a run-up in applications for new policies.

A leaflet gotten out by the Morrow committee, "Robinson Crusoe and Thrift Stamps," embodying the New Jersey idea, was reprinted widely throughout the United States and was used by the national Liberty loan committee in the third loan campaign.

Asked to speak.

The formation of war savings societies in various industries was fostered first by the Morrow committee. As success after success in the war savings plan was reported from New Jersey, Mr. Morrow was asked to speak throughout the country.

One of his addresses made at this time has since been constantly used as an appeal to upbuild American savings; it was a plea to every citizen to save 20 cents a day.

"In the great enterprise of the restoration of Europe the indispensable man, the hero, will be the plain old-fashioned man who spends less than he produces and thus creates a fund without which all plans for the restoration of Europe must come to naught," Mr. Morrow said.

"If each of the 100,000,000 people in the United States would save 20 cents a day for 300 days a year the capital fund of the United States would be increased by $6,000,000,000." (Morrow: Mr. Morrow as Civilian Aide to General Pershing.)

He is survived by his widow and several children.

WOMAN WOUNDED BY STRAY BULLET

Mrs. J. M. Queen, 55, Hit When Negro Fires Pistol at Another.

Mrs. J. M. Queen, 55, of 321 Ashby street, S. W., early Sunday night was slightly wounded by a bullet fired by an unidentified negro, according to police reports. Mrs. Queen was treated at Grady hospital and sent back home.

The negro shot at another negro in front of Mrs. Queen's home and the bullet, going wild, struck Mrs. Queen in the lobe of the right ear. It was said. On first examination, it was believed by physicians that the bullet had entered her head, but X-ray pictures showed that the wound was superficial and that her skull was not broken.

Mrs. Queen was sitting on the front porch of her home talking with a neighbor, Mrs. Dora Wellborn, 324 Ashby street, S. W., when struck by the bullet. Radio cruiser patrolmen began a search for the negroes.

6,000-Mile Auto Tour of Europe Takes Haverty to Historic Spots

BY WILLIAM O. KEY JR.
Intimate views of Europe from the tonneau of a high-powered Hispano-Suiza motor car were brought back Sunday by J. J. Haverty, prominent Atlanta, who has been abroad for the last three months. With Mr. Haverty on the tour, which took in 6,000 miles of the most interesting parts of Europe, were Miss May Haverty and Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Lordin. Mr. Lordin is vice president of the High Museum of Art.

The motor trip on the continent was begun on August 6 from Paris, and was concluded on September 21 at the French capital. The itinerary of the Haverty party embraces the most important and interesting points in six countries—France, Italy, Austria, Germany, Holland and Belgium.

At his home, Villa Clare, on Peachtree road, Sunday night, Mr. Haverty said he was deeply impressed with the character of the French people. Perhaps no other nation in the world today, he said, possesses a greater natural thrift and industriousness than do the French. It is to this trait that the Atlanta art lover attributes the leadership which France now holds in Europe, politically and financially.

Emphasize constructive work, Mr. Haverty said, "but every effort into constructive work. They produce everything under the sun that they need—cows, sheep, wheat, and all other crops for their own domestic use, and they save every cent possible. That is why France today leads all the rest of Europe in financial stability."

Although he visited numerous famous art schools and galleries abroad, Mr. Haverty said he had not purchased any paintings for the High Museum of Art, to which he has contributed liberally. He disclosed, however, that he had commissioned one of the world's most famous living artists to paint two pictures which will be placed among the invaluable works of art that adorn the walls of Villa Clare.

While in Venice, Mr. Haverty said, he visited John Corrigan, the American consul, who formerly was Washington correspondent for The Atlanta Constitution. Mr. Corrigan, he said, chatted reminiscently of Atlanta and of his work for this newspaper.

Sketchily speaking, the tour, having been begun at Paris, took in the following places of interest:

Versailles, Blois, Tours, Portiers, Bordeaux, Biarritz, Pau, Cannes; Genoa, Pisa, Rome, Perugia, Florence, Verona, thence via the famous Tyroler Brenner pass to Innsbruck, in Austria; Munich, Nuremberg, Heidelberg, Wiesbaden, Cologne, Germany; Amsterdam, Voldendam, The Hague, Holland; Brussels, Belgium; to Rheims, thence to Paris.

Historic Spots Visited.

Included in the places visited were historic spots in art and music, including those in Perugia, Italy, birthplace of Perugino, the famous Italian teacher of painting, and that of Beethoven, in Cologne. In Paris, Mr. Haverty and Mr. Lordin assisted the Julian Academy of Art, where Lewis Gregg, former cartoonist for The Constitution, recently completed an advanced study of painting; as well as the world-renowned School of Beaux Arts.

At the Julian academy, Mr. Haverty related, the work of Mr. Gregg was highly esteemed, and his personality and good humor were recalled among the mentors.

In Oberammergau, where every decade the famous "Passion Play" is enacted, the Haverty party met Anton Lang, who in 1900 and 1910 played the great role of the Christ. In the 1930 presentation it was Anton Lang who essayed the prologue of the gripping play, while another and younger Lang assumed the characterization of Jesus Christ. There they met also the young woman who, before her marriage recently, played the role of Mary Magdalen. Since the 1930 presentation the young woman has married, and in this connection Mr. Haverty recalled to mind a fact not generally known concerning the "Passion Play": That while every male in the village of Oberammergau takes part in the grand enactment, only the unmarried women of the town are permitted to participate. In this case, they learned, the young woman who played the Magdalen role in 1930 had entered connubial bliss after the drama had terminated.

Received By Pope.
While in Rome, Mr. Haverty said, he was among those received in public audience by His Holiness Pope Pius XI. The pontiff appeared well and ill, Mr. Haverty observed, and the assumption was that it was due to the strained relations between the Vatican and the fascist government. It was while the Haverty party was in the Italian capital that the concordat was reached bringing an end to the disagreement between the church and the state.

Munich proved of exceeding interest to the tourists. Mr. Haverty related of a visit to a Hofbrauhaus, or government beer house, in that city. "It was a novel affair," he said. "I noticed that the beer drinking was carried out on three separate floors of the Hofbrauhaus. The first floor was given over to the working or poorer classes of people. There the huge steins of beer were bought for about two cents each, and the people drank their beer and chatted amiably with one another. They ate light lunches and carried on a good-humored running fire of conversation."

"On the second floor, which obviously was the beer garden of a better class of people, the charge was a little higher, but the same good humor prevailed, and beer was drunk in a fitting manner, with sausages, sauerkraut and other Bavarian conestibles served. The third floor seemed to be more of a family arrangement. Men and their wives and children were gathered about little tables in a big room—a sort of a rattleseller arrangement. The men had big steins, the women theirs, and the children had their smaller ones. They ate and drank in a manner that clearly showed that there was no boisterousness or drunkenness attached to this manner of beer garden."

U. S. Still in Fore.
Women of Germany and France appeared nicely attired, Mr. Haverty thought. While he considers Paris still as the bellwether for women's styles, he said that on a general comparison no other nation appears to compare favorably with American womanhood in beauty and fashion standards.

It was in Paris that Mr. Haverty met the famous artist, H. O. Tanner. Tanner, who has paintings hung in virtually all of the world's outstanding galleries, is a native American negro. Born in Pittsburgh, the son of a bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal church, Tanner now is 74 years of age, and has spent almost his entire life on the continent. He has been decorated by the French government, which purchased one of his famous canvases, and is holder of the ribbon of the Legion of Honor. His work is entirely devoted to depiction of Biblical stories, and in this connection Mr. Haverty commissioned him to paint a unique interpretation of the "Summer at Emmaus," and "The Burning of Sodom and Gomorrah." The French government purchased Tanner's original Emmaus work, which depicts the two disciples, Cleophas and another whose identity long has remained a matter of controversy among bibliophiles and art scholars, seated at supper in the little town of Emmaus outside of Jerusalem, with a stranger sitting between them. This third person is presumed to be the reincarnated Lord.

In the commission given by Mr. Haverty the artist agreed to endeavor an execution which will give to the

Bust of Enrico Leide Given to Woman's Club

Dr. Charles Klein's bust of Enrico Leide, leader of the Fox orchestra, was presented to the Atlanta Woman's Club Sunday afternoon during a program at the Fox theater, attended by more than 2,500 persons. The bust will be loaned to the theater by the woman's club for display in the lobby of the Fox.

Mayor James L. Key spoke of what Mr. Leide, as a musician, has meant to Atlanta. Al Evans, organist of the Fox, and a specially arranged 60-piece orchestra took part in the musical program. Dr. Klein, the sculptor, was presented to Atlantans following the musical program. Mrs. N. O. Newman, of the woman's club, introduced Dr. Klein, who presented the bust to the club. Mr. William T. Dunn, president of the club, accepted the work of art. Manager Carter Barron, of the Fox, told what the sculpture will mean to the theater, and Mr. Leide, presented to the audience, rendered a "cello solo."

finished painting a quality so rare as to assure its worldwide acclaim. The picture will show the disciples seated at the table, the serving-boy standing near, but with a nebulous mist-like inference of the presence, and disappearance of Christ. Mr. Haverty is eagerly looking forward to this great work by the Paris painter, and confidently anticipates its acceptance as one of the great modern paintings.

BOY IS BADLY INJURED BY ROCK; MAN JAILED

As the result of what police charge was an unprovoked attack, J. Rogers, 15-year-old boy who lives at 975 Capitol avenue, S. E., was in Grady hospital late Sunday night, the victim of a fractured skull, while an adult man was being held at police headquarters pending outcome of the youth's injuries.

Young Rogers, police said, was on his way to church Sunday night, in company with several other boys. As he passed along Crew street near Pope street, a drunken man, without provocation, picked up a huge rock and threw it at the group of juveniles, striking young Rogers in the head.

At the time of the incident, it was said, Rogers' friends did not believe him to be seriously injured, although they accompanied him to his home. Later, however, he lapsed into unconsciousness, and he was rushed to Grady hospital. Policemen investigating the occurrence arrested J. R. Robinson, of 50 Pope street, and held him on a blanket charge of drunk and disorderly conduct. He was ordered to be held without bond pending outcome of young Rogers' wounds, said by hospital attaches to be serious.

Farmers of Cherokee County Blessed by 'Live-at-Home' Habit

CANTON, Ga., Oct. 11.—In the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains hard, natural conditions of days gone by forced the farmers of Cherokee county to live at home. Now, with the coming of diversified farming, the trials of early days have returned to these people in the form of blessings. Facing the doorway of the marble courthouse at Canton hangs the handiwork of a farm club boy which expresses the sentiments of the surrounding countryside. The inscription reads:

"The farmer who lives at home is a happy farmer—plenty to eat, plenty to feed his live stock, chickens, milk, eggs, butter, syrup, meat and potatoes. His land in good condition, no washes and gradually getting better; has good pastures and good orchards; cotton (and here is sketched a large bale of cotton) is his surplus. And he owes nothing."

One of the best examples in this section of the successful farmer is M. E. Wilbanks, who resides on a 200-acre farm between Canton and Ball Ground. He has practiced diversified farming for 10 years and is of the firm belief that the live-at-home program is the only one for the practical farmer. Live-stock raising, in his opinion, will be the salvation of the small farmer in the future. Among the things raised by Mr. Wilbanks are corn, okra, beans, peas, sweet and Irish potatoes, tomatoes, squash, beets, carrots, cotton, all kinds of feed, chickens, hogs and winter legumes.

Last year he planted only one acre of cotton, which produced two bales, or approximately six times as much as the average acre.

Mr. Wilbanks was one of the first farmers in Georgia to install a trench silo, which is a new idea and is destined to go far toward revolutionizing the live-stock industry. This silo is built underground and provides a storehouse to supply feed stuffs for farm animals during the winter. It is an inexpensive proposition, the only equipment needed is a mule and a drag shovel. Into the excavation the ground feed is placed and covered with straw or pine needles.

CONVICTED PHYSICIAN GRANTED NEW TRIAL

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 11.—(AP)—More than a year after his original conviction on the charge of attacking an Effingham county woman and her daughter, Dr. A. G. Grenoble, 73-year-old physician, is to get a new trial on the same charge. The case is set for hearing at Springfield next Thursday at a special session of the Effingham county superior court.

Dr. Grenoble was sentenced August, 1930, to serve 15 to 20 years for attacking the two women and was also convicted on the charge of practicing medicine without a license. In April, 1931, the supreme court of Georgia granted him a new trial, on the grounds that the trial court had been in error in not granting a motion for postponement advanced by the defense, that there was an aroused condition of the public mind at the time of the trial.

The physician, who was originally from Jacksonville, has been serving his time on the Bulloch county chain gang. He was more recently transferred to the Effingham county jail at Springfield.

Dr. Grenoble denied the charge and asserted that he had only treated the two women as patients. The women were taken to the state insane asylum

ROOSEVELT CHEERED BY N. Y. RELIEF NEWS

Weehawken Tunnel Project
To Employ Thousands
Through Winter.

BY WALTER T. BROWN.
Associated Press Staff Correspondent.
WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Oct. 11.—Governor Roosevelt's last Sunday of this vacation was brightened by the report of Howard S. Cullman, member of the port of New York authority, that the Thirty-eighth street-Weehawken vehicular tunnel soon would be under construction, further relieving the unemployment burden of the Empire state.

Cullman said the tunnel and the inland freight terminal, now being built at Sixteenth street and Eighth avenue, would employ 5,000 to 10,000 men throughout the winter. The Weehawken tunnel, the second to be built in New York under the Hudson river, will cost about $85,000,000.

Lessening the distress of the unemployed has been the major task of the Roosevelt administration this year. The governor initiated a $20,000,000 relief program at a special session of the state legislature last month. New York was the first state to undertake a relief program on such a huge scale and in a direct manner.

Roughly, half of the state's $30,000,000 fund, raised by a 50 per cent increase in income tax payments, will be expended as wages on public projects and the remaining $10,000,000 will go to buy food, shelter, clothing and medical supplies and treatment for the unfortunate for whom no work can be supplied.

The climax of the Warm Springs visit so far as the neighborhood Georgians are concerned will be on October 13, when the Meriwether County Roosevelt-for-President Club holds its barbeque "homecoming" in a grove of pines across the Atlanta, Birmingham and Coast railroad tracks from the foundation.

There will be no speeches. However, the placards proclaiming the event read: "No politics." Afterward Mr. Roosevelt will referee a golf match between two amateurs and two professionals. He probably will be

Miss Mitchell Weds W. J. Davis Jr. In Brilliant Rites at Yakima, Wash.

YAKIMA, Wash., Oct. 11.—Before the altar of the Yakima First Presbyterian church, made beautiful by candelabra and snowy chrysanthemums, palms and ferns, Alice Virginia Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Mitchell, tonight became the bride of William J. Davis Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Davis, of Atlanta, Ga.

While wedding guests were ushered to their seats by Clark Cole and Stuart Foster, Harrison Miller played "The Wedding March" and the bride sang "At Dawning" and "The Wedding Song." As the bride and groom entered, notes of the wedding march sounded and during the ceremony "Dream of Love" was played softly.

Small John Carbett, in white satin, carried the ring. The flower girls, Margaret Mays and Jeanne Mays, dressed in frilly pink and white, carrying baskets of pink and white roses, followed down the aisle. The bride, on the arm of her father, was dressed in an ivory satin gown, made in princess style, with long train caught to skirt and with veil fastened at side and back with orange blossom clusters.

The bride carried a shower bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley and gardenias, and wore as her only ornament a diamond-set watch which was the bridegroom's present. She was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his father, who served as his son's best man, and vows were pronounced before the Rev. D. W. Ferry. The maid of honor and the bridesmaids, all brunettes, like the bride, wore pastel shades. Louise Cocklin, maid of honor, carried a shower bouquet of yellow roses and was in palest green gown of starched chiffon made in straight lines with full bertha collar and long flare skirt. Bridesmaids, Esther Cunningham, in yellow; Neva Mitchell, in pink; Helen Wiley, in blue, and Nadine Rounds, in blue, wore frocks similarly styled and carried clusters of pink roses. All wore white moire shoes and white lace mitts, the latter the gift of the bride. Groomsmen were George and Ray Twoby, Chalmers Walters and James Thompson. Flower maids wore souvenir lockets given by the bride.

Following recessional music, the wedding reception was held in the Mitchell home, which was decorated with white chrysanthemums and pink roses. In the reception line were Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, the latter wearing black lace with corsage of orchids and gardenias; the bride and bridegroom, and members of the bridal party.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis left after the reception for Seattle, and will go to Vancouver and Victoria, B. C., San Francisco and Los Angeles, Salt Lake, Denver and Chicago before going to their new home in Atlanta, November 1. Mrs. Davis' going-away costume was brown crepe dress and tweed coat with matching accessories. She carried orchid and gardenia corsage.

The bride's father is prominent in democratic party circles here and is deputy prosecuting attorney of Yakima county.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

Making Defense Difficult

It is the mark of a great Contract player to give as much information as possible to his partner in the bidding without revealing all the strength or weakness of his hand to his opponents. It is also the mark of a great Contract player to make the defense as difficult as possible for his adversaries. Whenever there are two lines of defense possible, the one the Declarer desires his opponents to most should be made to appear the most desirable, provided, of course, that the resources at his command permit him to in any way confuse his opponents.

Recently, in the individual Masters' Pair, Contract Tournament held at Deal, N. J., there was an excellent illustration of this principle in the play of Willard Karn, who won the gold cup given by himself.

2—East's Raise is optimistic.

In the play, North, the leader, was confronted with a variety of leads, all bad. The lead of the fourth best heart does not appear particularly desirable. In view of East's bid of clubs, the opening of that suit would appear to be to the advantage of the Declarer, while the lead of a diamond might easily result in losing the Queen. So North, no doubt wisely, selected a trump as the opening lead. This Mr.

THE FIRST STEP TOWARD PREPARING FOR LONELINESS IS THE RECOGNITION OF THE FACT THAT WE LIVE IN A WORLD OF CHANGE. NOTHING IS STATIONARY. NOTHING, "BUT SHALL SUFFER SEA-CHANGE." CHILDREN GROW UP. THEIR CHILDREN GROW UP. THE RICH BECOME POOR, THE POOR BECOME RICH. AND AS THESE CHANGES COME ALL THE LIVING CONDITIONS CHANGE. IT'S A TRUE THOUGHT BUT IT IS A TRUE ONE; EVERYBODY AND EVERYTHING CHANGE.

One can spend the whole of life in grieving over the kaleidoscopic quality of the present that passes our vision. One can spend the whole of life in a desire and expectancy of what is coming next, but there is a better way. It is to enjoy what is at hand without looking back. It is to use what is available without looking forward. It is to make the best of every day as it comes and garner something from it.

Said a middle-aged man to his middle-aged wife: "My dear, we are eating our white bread, enjoy it while you may." The wife replied: "I don't know, I am looking for some butter to spread on the next loaf." He smiled at her and added, rather wistfully, "It may be black and bitter bread without butter." So the years passed and he prophesied better than he knew. She did eat black bread and it was bitter, but worse, she ate it alone.

I talked to that woman recently and I asked her if she were lonely. "No," she replied, "I have my memories and I have my hopes and I have my work and my books and my family and friends. I'm not lonely, though I am alone."

Gentle reader, are you collecting memories to bank against the day of your aloneness? Are you making friends to cheer your heart in the day of your aloneness? Are you cultivating your mind with readings, are you warming your heart with human experiences? If not, you had better begin. For time will come when you, too, shall be alone.

Mr. and Mrs. Little Honor Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Little entertained at an informal tea Saturday at their home in the Biltmore apartments on Fifth street, as a complimentary gesture to Judge Rufus E. Foster and Mrs. Foster, of New Orleans. These distinguished Louisiana visitors are guests of former Governor John M. Slaton and Mrs. Slaton, at Wingfield, their home on Andrews drive, and are being feted at a series of social affairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Little have recently returned from a four-month trip to Europe, where, according to their custom of many years' standing, they spend every summer. They leave today for Oakland plantation, near Albany, their country retreat, which is one of the most productive plantations in Georgia, and is located in one of the most attractive sections of the state.

Seven New World Series Records Set by Cards and Athletics; Carnera Has Edge Over Sharkey in Big Bout Tonight--McGill

CARDS, A'S BREAK SEVEN RECORDS IN SERIES PLAY

5 Others Equalled; 3 New Individual Marks Set by Frisch.

By Alan Gould,

Associated Press Sports Editor.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Twelve record performances marked the 1931 World Series, including the displacement of seven former records and the equaling of five others.

The world champion Cardinals, led by Pepper Martin, came close to running wild through the record books. They won the series, but Martin's personal rampage was effectively stopped by Grove and Earnshaw in the last two games.

Martin had a half dozen records all but wrapped up until he went hitless in his final two games. He tied two long-standing records with his total of 12 hits for the series and four runs batted in for one game. He stole five bases, within one of the record. Frank Frisch, captain and second baseman of the Cardinals, set three new records. He increased his total of hits to 52 and increasing his times at bat to 166. He also enjoys the distinction now of having participated in the most World Series games, 45, six more than Babe Ruth.

JUST MISSES.

Frisch missed a good chance to equal Ruth's record of hitting .300 or better in five series. The Cardinal captain fell to a final batting mark of .269 by getting only one hit in the last two games. He was over the .300 mark four straight times with the Giants in 1921-24, but has yet to do so with the Cards.

The Athletics established a new defensive record by playing errorless ball in the first five games, but their defense was distinctly wobbly in the final contest. Poor work on two pop flies that went for singles, and an error by Fox after Cochrane dropped a third strike, contributed to the inning advantage the Cards gained against Earnshaw.

Earnshaw, by striking out 20 Cardinals in 24 innings, came within one of equalling Joe Wood's record against the Giants in 1912. Big George's total of 56 strikeouts in three World Series puts him within striking distance of another record, 59 by Chief Bender.

AL CAME CLOSE.

Al Simmons, big nose of the A's at bat, came within one of equalling Lou Gehrig's cleanup record by accounting for eight runs batted in. Al hit safely in all but one game, the second, and was the only player on either team to do so.

The records broken or tied this year follow:

1. Most hits, one series, 12, Martin, equalling record held jointly by Buck Herzog, Joe Jackson and Sam Rice.
2. Most runs batted in, one game, 4, Martin, equalling record shared by Elmer Smith, Goose Goslin, Babe Ruth, Lester Bell and Al Simmons.
3. Most hits, total series, 52, Frisch, beating own former record of 45.
4. Most times at bat, total series, 166, Frisch, displacing own former mark of 139.
5. Most games played, total series, 45, Frisch, breaking former record of 33 held by Babe Ruth.
6. Most series umpired, 15, by William J. Klem, National League, breaking own former record.
7. Most two-hit performances in succession, one series, 4, by Grimes of Cardinals, and George Earnshaw of Athletics in third and fourth games. Equals feat of Ed Walsh of White Sox and Mordecai Brown of Cubs, in 1906.

CLUB RECORDS.

8. Most errorless games, one club, one series, 5, by Athletics, equalling mark of Giants in 1921.
9. Most successive errorless games, one club, one series, 5, by Athletics, breaking mark of 4 by Red Sox in 1918.
10. Most errorless games, both clubs, one series, 5, by A's and Athletics, equalling mark of 4 by Yankees and Giants in 1921.
11. Most strikeouts, both clubs, one series, 85, including 43 A's and 40 Cardinals, breaking former record of 82 by Giants and Yankees in 1921, eight games.
12. Fewest stolen bases, one club, one series, none, by Athletics, for third straight year.

Betting on Series

Heaviest in Years,

Veteran Declares

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Thomas M. Kearney, veteran St. Louis betting commissioner, said today more money was wagered in the 1931 World Series than any he recalls. St. Louis betters, who backed the Cardinals, despite the opinion of the experts that the Athletics would win, "cleaned up" in the betting, Kearney said.

"Nearly all of the St. Louis betters picked the Cardinals," Kearney said. "The big betters were mostly westerners, men from Kansas City and Oklahoma, who followed the 'dope' and bet on the Athletics. They found plenty of Cardinal money to take what they offered. The only way I can account for the heavy betting, despite the depression, is the length of the series and the fact people are becoming more baseball-minded."

"The betting was even heavier than in the 1926 series. Besides the bets on the series, there was considerable betting on individual games. St. Louis betters backed Grimes and Hallahan heavily to win their games, and they guessed right."

Even after the disappointing Friday game, there was a lot of St. Louis money placed on Grimes and Hallahan to win the final game. Bettors had become accustomed to placing their money on those two pitchers when they started in the regular season."

Scenes From Georgia's Third Victory Over Yale in Famous Bowl

fleet Yale star down for Dickens to charge in and make the tackle. Downes, with two Yale men bearing down upon him, abruptly turned his back and ran in front of the interferences, slowing them down, and allowing Dickens to overtake Booth. "Red" Leathers is shown in the picture at the upper right after he crossed the Yale goal line for Georgia's first touchdown of the game. Leathers caught an attempted pass by Taylor, of Yale, and raced 35 yards to the last marker in the second quarter. At the lower left you see Buster Mott, Atlanta boy and one of the stars of the Georgia team, after he received the opening kick-off and fell in back of the famous Georgia "V" formation for a march down the field. Georgia used this same play to score its first touchdown in the Yale bowl last year when Austin Downes took the opening kick-off and ran 81 yards. At the lower right, "Catfish" Smith is shown punting out of danger from under the shadow of his own goal in the second quarter. These pictures were rushed to The Constitution via air mail by the Associated Press.

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 11.—Georgia's football team, which Saturday afternoon made Yale look very bad by defeating them, 26 to 7, without using as much as one end run and more than one forward pass formation, awoke this morning and blushing read the newspaper accounts of the game.

And my, how times have changed. They had to, I suppose. Georgia has beaten Yale four times in the past five years, the last three games being swept clean.

And after such a record as that, only the die-hards in one or two of the tabloids who are very resentful about everything indeed, refused to be generous.

Stanley Woodward, writing in the Herald-Tribune, said: "Led by a small and unheralded back named Homer Key, whose physical proportions are almost identical with those of Albie Booth, the fiery southerners smashed and circumscribed the northern defense. Co-incidentally, they smothered the Eli running attack with a whole-souled completeness. Actually and on paper, Georgia outplayed the Blue in every department of football."

Which is saying plenty in one paragraph.

There wasn't any doubt about it, and, to a campaigner who started playing with a southern team in some intersectional games years ago, and who has watched them across ten more years, it is almost unbelievable to realize just how far southern football has come along.

Georgia is largely responsible. Georgia Tech has done a great deal in the past, as have Vanderbilt and Alabama. Yet Georgia, by the consistency of her victories over Yale has done perhaps more to establish southern football than any other team.

Watching Georgia Saturday was a revelation. I had expected them to come onto the field in a mental condition bordering on the desperate. They had just been told that Harry Mehre, their head coach, could not be with them.

It was an emotional impulse. And yet they played football just as if it were a job of work to be done. They did it awfully well. That is the sign of a matured, thinking football team.

And watching them play, much smoother than Yale, much more certain of themselves and their plays, one found room for amazement. Here was a team from the south, toying with Yale.

Only four line plays were used, no end runs and one pass formation. The first team played not more than half the game. Had Georgia gone into the game, bent on running up a score, they could have beaten Yale about 40 points or more.

As it was they showed two or three backs better than

WEARY PETRELS AT WORK AGAIN

'Victory Depression' Is Acute as Boys Face Loyola Friday.

By Jack Troy.

Like fabled Humpty-Dumpty, Oglethorpe's Stormy Petrels have fallen off the football wall, and they've had a bad fall, in word as well as in deed. All the king's horses might not be able to turn the trick, but Coach Harry Robertson's men can put the Petrels' prestige back together again. And they will have the chance to do this Saturday.

Boiled in the cauldron of Manhattan revenge last Friday night, the travel-weary Petrels, their defeat-soaked feathers heavy but unruined, winged their way back to the home campus yesterday.

Now the Loyola Wolf is howling at this fall against an Oglethorpe team that before the season started was the most likely-looking outfit that had been mobilized out there in years. For something must be done about this victory business, or rather the lack of it. The victory depression at Oglethorpe is becoming acute.

There is nothing ahead for the Petrels but a row of hard games, and only determination will carry the boys through.

Reviewing their three games this year, one finds that the breaks have been against Oglethorpe in every one. Whereas last year they were mainly beset by injuries all season, this season they are afflicted with a combination of both. They haven't been able to shake a very persistent jinx.

Bourrasque Winner In French Derby

LONGCHAMP, France, Oct. 11.—(AP)—La Bourrasque, Gustave Beaulieu's two-year-old, scored an easy victory today in the Prix Critereum, France's "two-year-old Derby."

The race was value at $6,000 and the winner paid 7 to 1 in the pari-mutuels.

Lord Derby's Sweet Briar captured the $1,200 Prix Delta Fourieres.

Enright Pays Tribute To Yale and to Booth

Stevens Reciprocates With Praise of Georgia's Team and of Downes in Particular.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Rex Enright, who directed the University of Georgia team in the absence of Head Coach Harry Mehre, who was unable to be in New Haven yesterday because of the illness of his father, paid tribute to the fighting and potential qualities of the Yale team and to its captain, Albie Booth.

"Yale played a hard game," Enright said. "They had plays similar to ours, but the methods of blocking were different. Yale should be stronger as it goes along, for it is possible to make the Notre Dame system click in three weeks."

"Although our passes were completed in Booth's territory, he must be considered as one of the best backs in the country. There is no doubt about that. Our team was coached against Booth, and one of the best plays of the game was when Downes cut off Booth on that long run. Downes played a great game. Our line outcharged Yale's, but the Yale line should improve as it goes along."

Mal Stevens, head coach of Yale, was not exactly disheartened after yesterday's defeat in the Yale bowl. He said Georgia came here with a great team and deserved to win, but he didn't think the final score told the full story.

"We played ragged football, to be sure," Stevens said, "but when the first string was in there we showed them some good football, and before the season gets fully under way we should be clicking. Today was our first real attempt and it probably came too soon."

"That fellow Downes is a great player. He is, I think, the best quarterback who ever played in the Yale bowl."

White Polo Team Beats Reds, 6 to 4

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 11.—(AP)—A "Red menace" confronted the White polo team this afternoon and the two mounted quartets battled vigorously through the entire six periods before the Whites found themselves winners by a two-goal margin. The final score was: Whites 6; Reds 4.

Nearly six minutes of fast play elapsed in the opening period before Floyd, of the Whites, scored the initial goal. Noble Jones, of the Reds, and Coleman, of the Whites, staged a race the length of the field after the ball and thrilled the fans. The "Red menace" consisted mainly in the work of Jones, Zealy and Watkins, with the other Red players put in during the game providing a fair share of the battle.

WOMEN GOLFERS TEE OFF TODAY

Mrs. Doak Ready To Defend Title in Georgia Tournament.

SEA ISLAND BEACH, Ga., Oct. 11.—(AP)—With Mrs. W. D. Doak, of Atlanta, on hand to defend her title, some three-score golfers are expected to tee off here tomorrow morning at the venue of the women's tournament of the second annual Georgia women's golf championship.

The titular play will be over the same Sea Island course which served as the venue of the men's tournament last July and won by Charles Yates, of Atlanta.

The sixteen low scorers today will be placed in the championship flights and other players will fall into flights of sixteen each, according to their qualifying round scores.

Far for the course is 72, but during the tournament women's par will be 80. It appeared tonight that an 82 or 83 probably would win the medal, and that possibly a 95 would be included in the titular group.

Prominent among Mrs. Doak's contenders is Miss Margaret Maddox, also of Atlanta, who won the Southern women's championship in 1926. For two years Miss Maddox has been runner-up to Mrs. Doak in state championships. She is playing her best game now and will enter as a joint favorite with the title defender.

The tournament will continue through Friday, when the championships will be held in all flights.

Finals Await Wagar's Return.

Finals in three flights and semi-finals in another flight were completed Sunday afternoon on the Anley Park course in an annual club championship tournament.

H. C. Nowell and H. R. Wagar have reached the finals in the championship flight, and will play a 36-hole match as soon as Wagar returns to the city from a business trip.

In the first flight, Parks Hunt defeated E. B. Taylor, 4-3. Bob Marion won the second flight, with a 3-2 victory over Dr. A. W. Calhoun, and A. O. Mitchell defeated Dr. W. T. Nicholson, 7-6, to win the third flight honors.

J. J. Jones Jr. defeated Dr. J. C. Wright, 7-6, and Charlie Strong defeated C. C. Clower, 4-3, in the semi-finals of the consolation flight. They will meet during the week in the finals.

Barnes Adds Another Title.

Pete Barnes, Junior Chamber of Commerce champion, added another trophy to his collection Sunday afternoon.

GIANT ITALIAN MAY YET PROVE NEXT CHAMPION

Jack May Find 'Exploration' of Man-Mountain Tough Job.

By Ralph McGill.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—On Monday night at Ebbetts field they are going to throw Jack Sharkey in there against Primo Carnera, the Italian mammoth, in what should be one of the best heavyweight fights in years.

There are all sorts of those reports getting about town—one that the Sharkey man wanted a huge sum to go in the tank and that it wasn't forthcoming. And so on. None of this can be taken seriously. Those sort of things are said at every heavyweight fight.

The important thing is that Primo Carnera, one of the real mysteries of the ring, is to meet the first really good heavyweight he has ever fought in two years of fake fights, hippodroming and clowning.

GREAT PROSPECT.

And while I find myself almost alone in the matter, I don't see why Primo Carnera might not some day be champion of the world if he can but cut away from the men handling him. Still, in the fight business, changing managers is very much like leaping from the frying pan into the fire.

Carnera was at the Stribling-Schmeling fight in Cleveland last summer. In a radio room one night I got a chance to see him close up. His face, in repose, is not so bad.

But when he smiles or laughs one wants to leap hurriedly out the window. His great face becomes horrible to see as it twists into all sorts of caricatures and lines. It would make the gargoyles on Notre Dame look like beauty prize winners.

GOOD-NATURED PRIMO.

He is good-natured, likes to make bad jokes in broken English and eats enormously. Speaking into the microphone that night he was making a speech in Italian. He giggled, like a lion roaring, made faces at the mike and otherwise conducted himself as a first rate goof. And yet he isn't so dumb. Max Schmeling took a run-out powder on him, and there are others who don't care for any part of the big fellow.

At any rate, Sharkey is about to explore the mysterious man mountain of Carnera, and see if it is a mountain of cheese, as some would have it, or if there is "gold in them thar hills."

Sharkey is the first high-class heavyweight to meet the Italian, and while exploring the Carnera mountain, Sharkey can show just what he is in the list of contenders.

BOTH UNPOPULAR.

The fight is expected to draw about $200,000 in this coolish weather. And the strange thing about it is that the crowd, which has been so thin could lose. No one likes Sharkey, and the rank and file thinks that Carnera's road has been all smoothed out for him.

Carnera's supporters point out that he has knocked out more good men than had Luis Firpo when that worthy got his shot at Jack the Dempsey and almost rung the bell. They claim that all these easy fights the big fellow has had have him training and made him a real fighter.

There may be a great deal in this. It was a long series of exhibition matches which boosted Max Schmeling far along the road toward the Heavyweight title.

DIFFERENT TYPES.

Carnera is a different type of fighter from Firpo. He is faster, for one thing, despite his six feet and six inches of bulk. He has a real jab, one that a light heavyweight would envy. He also hits pretty well with a short right. Sharkey professes to be a boxer, and he has the skill and attack the body to win any one knows what Sharkey will do. He has been such a rank in-and-out that one can't figure on him. He will be giving away seven inches in height, 57 pounds in weight, 12 inches in reach, and is five years older than Carnera.

On the other hand, he is a real athlete to the bone. He has a real feet. His legs and part of his body is ropy with large varicose veins that stand out very prominently. And no one has ever hit him in the jaw, and no one has ever attacked the body. Sharkey has had 45 fights and Carnera 50. Sharkey has knocked out 13 men to 30 for Carnera. Most of Carnera's, though, were bums, such as Dempsey has been knocking out here of late.

And so it should be a great evening, this exploration of the Carnera mountain, and somehow I like Carnera.

Sharkey Favored

In Betting Odds.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera will stride into the ring at Ebbetts field tomorrow night for a 15-round heavyweight test, last promotional venture of Jimmy Johnston before he moves over to Madison Square Garden.

The better fraternity has installed Sharkey as a 7-5 favorite, despite Carnera's many disappointing performances, the most recent of which was his draw with the middleweight, Mickey Walker.

Carnera, weighing 270 pounds, has bowled over set-ups by the score in his two tours of the United States, but against first-rate or near-first-rate heavyweights his record is less impressive.

He split even in two bouts in Europe with Young Stribling, both being decided on fouls, and he got no better than an even break with Jimmy Maloney, of Boston. Maloney won their first meeting at Boston, and Carnera took a half-line decision in the south.

A defeat for Sharkey might well end for all time the Boston sailor's position as a contender for the heavyweight title. If he can bowl over the giant Italian tomorrow, he probably will be asked to battle Tommy Loughran again before he rates a "shot" at Max Schmeling.

INSTALLMENT XXXVII

Lisa returned to her room deeply thoughtful. How could she give happiness to Fabia? What could she do to restore that rarest of possessions to this child of hers who had been so wounded and robbed? What if she were to go to Dr. Warburton, and subtly, delicately, reopen communication between Fabia and Dan Regan? Perhaps Dr. Warburton and she had been mistaken. In this age of tearing down old codes and conventions, and building up new ones on independent standards, had they attempted to apply to Fabia and Dan out-of-date rules for happiness?

Even in Boston, if the marriage should prove unhappy there was cause for divorce. She must not close her eyes to existing conditions, simply because her own sentiments cried out against them. What if she were to turn-about-face and encourage Dan and Fabia to put their love to the test?

No! It would simply be courting later unhappiness. She must be practical. She must be provincial. She knew her circle in Boston too well to trust this romance of Fabia's disapproval, to be followed by years of eyebrow-lifting and deprecatory remarks, made by dictators who were likely to remain in power for at least another quarter-century.

Lisa wished Morris had appeared upon the scene before Dan's entrance. He would have awakened Fabia more slowly than Dan, she imagined. But a fire that has been persuaded to burn is no less bright once under way. It was not inconceivable that Morris could kindle a new flame in Fabia's heart. It should not, however, be attempted until the old one was quite out. In time it would go out, if undisturbed. Lisa had married Rupert, blinded by the promise of position. Fabia must not marry Morris, blinded by the promise of escape. Fabia must not marry blind by anything—not even by love. "What had I better do?" whispered Lisa. What was the next wise step for her to take? She sighed deeply. To go to bed, she guessed. It was late. Quarter to twelve.

At a few minutes before 12 there was a low buzz of the telephone bell concealed beneath her dressing table.

Barry, perhaps, to say good night. They had run across each other at Grandmother Vale's for tea. Barry had brought her home in his car afterwards. Lisa had dismissed McKay, for it had been arranged she would run across Barry at Grandmother Vale's. That mustn't go on. Last Saturday night Barry had taken both Lisa and Charlotte to the symphony concert. He had sat between them and devoted himself to Charlotte in conversation. Poor Charlotte! Did she not surmise she was but a camouflage? Lisa and Barry had seen each other frequently since Christmas. Rupert had been out of town a great deal of the time. His firm was opening a branch office in Chicago. It necessitated his constant attention.

After Lisa had gently hung up the receiver, she threw herself down on her chaise longue, and, hands clasped beneath her head, her thoughts again soared far away.

Emma, Barry's wife, had been dead three months now. Barry did not pretend to mourn for her. It was not like Lisa to masquerade, unless by so doing he was saving some pain. Emma had not existed as Barry's wife for 15 years, except in name. Long before Lisa had appeared upon his horizon (like a flickering light of hope at first, he said; finally like a steady shining beacon), Emma had ceased to be more than heavy cargo. Her death relieved Barry of a burden he would not abandon because he was so used to her. But he had long desired release from Emma. Lisa knew this. There was little about Barry she did not know now.

Gazing up at the ceiling, the sound of his goodnight still murmuring in her heart, Lisa fell to reviewing the facts of Barry's married life. It had taken her five years to piece it together. Before Barry met Lisa, he had never discussed his private affairs with any human being, nor complained of his lot. Lisa's confidences were not easily won. Lisa treasured them all the more.

Lisa had never met Emma Firth, but she had met her prototype—a self-centered, self-pitying woman, ruling her household by the tyranny of an imaginary illness, demanding from her husband faithfulness and devotion, giving little in return but complaint. Emma went one step farther than most such women. Emma claimed that her ill health was her husband's fault. It had been Barry who had wanted a child, and urged that she expose herself to dangers of which he was very well aware. Her mother died when she was born. Emma maintained that her nervous collapse dated from the day she first knew she was to bear a child. She had been under the care of doctors, trained nurses, attendants, and companions ever since. The birth of the immature little creature who had never breathed had justified her fears and premonitions about child birth, of which Barry had made so light. He had treated her with tenderness and consideration for the rest of her life.

For 15 years Emma had never ceased blaming him. He had become convinced he did owe Emma a debt, but he despaired of diminishing it, as time went on and he observed her patience and sympathy for Emma disappearing. Emma also observed that of not loving her any more. Then finally she accused him of loving someone else. Although at the time there was no one else of whom he was aware, he felt guilty. For by that time he wished there was someone else. Barry did his best to make up for this wish, and for the other defects of which Emma so often reminded him, by being very kind to her—by the semblance, if not the spirit, of faithfulness and devotion.

When he was offered a position in Boston and Emma refused to accompany him, the doctors advised him to go without her. They said his actual presence seemed to increase his wife's undesirable neurotic tendencies, but they told him that constant letters and frequent visits would be desirable. Emma clung, with a terrible tenacity, to all the symbols of that which she had killed. Because she had killed it, Barry, in his compassion for her, did all in his power not to let her know.

Lisa realized now it had been a selfish wish of hers that Emma should be spared, in order to justify her monopoly of Barry. Already he was a different creature since Emma had ceased to be his duty. Lighter of heart, more buoyant in speech, in manner, in step even, it had seemed to her last week as they had walked along the river-bordered Esplanade, one late afternoon, into a lemon-colored sunset.

Something must be done. The present situation was robbing Barry as well as herself of other things in life. He ought to marry.

Whenever Lisa contemplated this imaginary woman, she felt a stab of envy, or was it jealousy? Why? Could she not learn to love Barry maternally? But though she tried, she could not change the nature of her love for Barry.

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need for a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

"A population of 500,000 by 1935," Atlanta's slogan. Let's all pull together for a Greater Atlanta.

INNER SPRINGS PUT IN OLD MATTRESSES

The Imperial Bedding Company, of 442 Cain street, N. E., reports that they are doing a splendid business in converting old mattresses into felt inner-spring mattresses.

This concern is rated as one of the best-matrix renovating plants in the southern states and has the very best of equipment and skilled workmen that enable them to renovate as many as 150 mattresses in a day. They have the best of rolling equipment also. Some of their trucks cover Atlanta and near-by towns, and others deliver in the rest of the state.

Converting of an old cotton mattress into a comfortable soft, felt, spring-filled mattress was a great step forward in the mattress renovating industry, and the Imperial Bedding Company, of Atlanta, which is a member of the Master Bedding Association of America, was selected for its ability, size of plant and equipment, to use the same special approved high-tempered coil spring that all members use.

The renovating of a mattress this new way is done by inserting a very light, wire steel, tempered, coil spring that is made up of 288 separate little spiral coils and they all connected with lead pencil-size of lengthwise and crosswise springs, in the middle section between an equal number of newly-made cotton filling. As the light wire springs are made of the new felt electrically sterilized and soft, the old mattress is returned with a new selected covering on it, and has the appearance of a comfortable feel of a high-priced mattress.

This firm carries an assortment of domestic and imported grades of tickings. Some of the two-tone colors and designs in its large assortment are the latest in mattress covering. All its city and state salesmen, as well as drivers carry samples with them. The company features one-day service.

ENVELOPE COMPANY PRAISED IN LETTER

RUFF COFFEE COMPANY HAS UNUSUAL SUCCESS

The Ruff Coffee Company, of 304 Marietta street, is having unusual success in its first year of business, according to the manager, R. G. Ruff. This company, which began only in January of this year, put out three brands and grades of coffee when they started, and their Ruff Ryder brand caught on with the coffee-drinking public. There have been many days that they have had to run to their full capacity of 5,000 pounds of fresh ground coffee a day to supply the many retail stores in Georgia and adjoining states.

Mr. Ruff is conceding much of their success also to the rule they have of not stocking any retailer too heavily, but supplying them fresh roasted coffee from two to three times a week. In our more than 20 years of experience in these blending and grinding of coffee in other connections," says Mr. Ruff, "we long ago reached the conclusion coffee retains its best flavor up until a certain period, and then loses its strength and real flavor fast; so we roast and grind every day, insuring good fresh coffee to our dealers, just as they sell it. We further safeguard it by inclosing it in inner bags that are tightly sealed, to retain all the good qualities, and exclude all dust and air impurities.

Letters praising its speedy delivery and the quality of its envelopes. As an example, Mr. Guthman, president of the company and veteran envelope man, recently received this letter from an outstanding Georgia institution: "We have Mr. Guthman's letter of September 4, in reference to our recent order of window envelopes, and note you shipped that part of our order in answer to our hurry call for same. This is service which we appreciate, and we wish to thank you. Whether letters of praise reach this big envelope manufacturer very frequently seems rather unimportant, however, Mr. Guthman says that a big majority of the company's business comes from customers whom they have served before. Many of them for the entire 28 years the firm has been in business. Apparently people like the work this Atlanta house does.

The Atlanta Envelope Company has been in the active management of Mr. Guthman, as president, during all the 28 years since it was founded. All types of commercial envelopes are manufactured in the big Stewart avenue plant and customers are located in practically all parts of the country.

Week Sees Virtual Reversal Of Evil Business Psychology

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Hardening of the arteries of credit has become one of the graver ills of the nation's business, and the preparation of a $500,000,000 dose for the banks promises a potent remedy.

The first whiff has already been a strong tonic to nerves, which alone is expected to facilitate recovery, while the morbid state of mind diagnosis was first made prematurely, there is little question that it describes the current condition.

If the outlook for improvement has been brightened in the past week, it was obviously too early to expect a quickening of the pulse of trade. The new and vigorous course of treatment has only been started.

Such basic weekly indicators as steel production, freight car loadings and electric power consumption, were off slightly as measured on a seasonally adjusted basis. Nevertheless, F. W. Dodge's report of building contracts let during September provided considerable encouragement. The daily average was 12 1/2 per cent over August, while the average gain for the past several years has been but 1 1/2 per cent.

Commodities bolstered. Commodity prices appeared to have been bolstered by the brightened sentiment, although a rally in response to the $500,000,000 bank plan was not apparent. Some economists, who interpret the administration's plan of credit mobilization as promising some degree of inflation, are predicting an upward trend in prices.

Nevertheless, such leading lines as wheat, cotton and copper are so sensitive to worldwide conditions, and too weighted down by huge stocks, that

BRADSTREET'S WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings for the week ending October 8, 1931, totaled $8,875,319,000 for the total United States and $2,907,276,000, excluding New York City. These totals represent a decline from last year of only 12 per cent and 17.5 per cent, respectively. There was an increase over the preceding week of 13.5 per cent and 12.8 per cent, respectively.

However, this showing is not as good as it appears at first sight. Two factors must be considered. 1.—More month-end payments were made this week than last month, it shows in regard to year ago. 2.—During the week which ended October 8, the stock and bond markets were very active, and the clearing banks were increasing bank clearings—especially in the larger cities. This holds true whether the markets are moving up or down.

Following are the returns to Bradstreet's for last week and the previous week, with percentages of changes shown last week, as compared with corresponding week last year, 1930 omitted:

An average yield of 12.00 per cent, a record high for 50 years, was established October 12 by the 301 active cash-dividend-paying common stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange. This compares with previous peak of 9.92 per cent recorded in 1921.

BOND LIST STAGES VIGOROUS ADVANCE

BY ALEXANDER HENDERSON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Bonds responded promptly to news of President Hoover's various plans for reviving confidence.

Organization of a company to assist banks being pressed for funds logically would help the bond market, since the operation of such an organization would tend to relieve the pressure to sell bonds in order to obtain cash to meet withdrawals. In fact, the bank would be able to reduce holdings which would not be possible otherwise.

Word that administration was considering some method of stabilizing railroad bonds as a means of assisting savings banks and insurance companies was an important bullish influence. These securities were aided also by Wall Street reports that the interstate commerce commission probably would grant part of the freight rate increase.

Sixty corporate bonds reached the lowest average price in several years at 80.00 on Monday, but the rally was so vigorous that the composite index climbed to 88.00 on Friday and to 84.20 on Saturday.

Higher discount rates of the federal reserve banks of New York, Boston and Cleveland, probably strengthening moderately firmer money levels, depressed Liberty and United States treasury bonds. These rates did not react with the sharp advance in the obligations because of the wide spread in yields between the two groups.

COTTON ADVANCES DESPITE ESTIMATE

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 11.—(AP)—

The government report issued during the past week was responsible for more active trading in cotton both before and after the bureau's figures were released. Prior to the date of publication, Thursday morning, the market, having eased off making new lows for the season on Monday, owing to the usual liquidation, and evening up of commitments customary before every government report, particularly with the sharp reactionary drop in the market, was in a bearish character was anticipated.

Although traders looked for an estimate of about 16,000,000 bales and sold on that expectation, the actual total given of 16,254,000 bales, much larger than anticipated, actually resulted in an advance of about $2 a bale. The theory that a large crop had been fully discounted. Moreover, the impression prevailed among traders that cotton had now dropped to a level which was considered a good investment basis. Even uncommonly heavy ginnings for the last period as shown by the census bureau failed to shake this impression.

Despite the slight reactionary tendency late in the week, prices showed net gains for the period of $1.50 a bale and the week closed with the unbroken healthier than it has been in some time.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the New Orleans futures market during the last week, compared with a year ago:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Year.
Oct. ....	5.53	5.30	5.71	10.34
Jan. ....	6.12	5.54	5.91	10.47
Mar. ....	6.31	5.74	6.20	10.79
May ....	6.51	5.93	6.40	10.92

CURB LIST REBOUNDS, RESISTS PROFIT-TAKING

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The curb market's contribution to the improved sentiment in financial circles was a substantial rebound from the year's low.

Prices rallied swiftly last week when constructive developments at Washington checked the flood of selling orders. All groups shared in the advance and numerous stocks that had been severely depressed responded with large gains. Profit-taking found the market supported with buying orders at a scale-down and there was only a narrow reaction from the best prices.

Electric Bond and Share rose above 20, accumulated by good recovering in other medium and low-priced securities. The few remaining issues in the higher brackets, notably Commonwealth Edison, Duquesne and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, rose swiftly.

Oils got good leadership from Standard of Indiana and Gulf both of which were strong. Industrials regained their courage, led by the higher-value specialties. Singer Manufacturing, Parker Rust, Mead Johnson and Aluminized of America were particularly buoyant, but there were relatively large gains in Woolworth, Ltd., Ford of Canada "A," Deere, Newmont and Driver Harris, to mention only a few.

The curb's investment trust group hardened, in the main, although there were scattered soft spots among preferred issues.

To supply northern Illinois cities and Milwaukee with natural gas from Texas.

HIGHLIGHTS OF WALL STREET

By CHARLES W. STORM.

Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—An advance of 22 points in the average price of industrial stocks, a rise of 11 points in the average quotations for 20 railroad shares and a gain of eight in the average figures for 20 public utility shares indicate the change in psychology which has occurred as a result of the Hoover proposals for relieving the country's credit situation.

While it will be contended that the proposed plans represent artificial measures, it cannot be denied that their mere promulgation has brought out impressive favorable results and checked liquidation of securities which had proceeded to a point where a financial cataclysm was in sight.

The developments of the last week have also checked the hoarding of money which was growing to large proportions and which was increasing the strain on banking institutions. They mark the beginning of co-operation between the administration and the banking elements to bring about a national economic recovery.

BIG PEOPLE BUYING. The increase in confidence has caused some of the biggest investment trusts and estates to enter the market as large buyers of stocks. The general public have also been large buyers of stocks the last week as indicated by the heavy volume of odd-lot purchases.

While the advance has been unusually rapid, there are many prospective buyers of stocks who missed their market. This element feels confident that the worst has been seen and has placed orders under the current level of prices with a view to making purchases on any reaction that may occur. The bankers are also determined to keep the general market steady.

RAILROAD RATES. Everything is being done at Washington to facilitate the work of reconstruction so that higher freight rates for the transportation companies should aid materially in accelerating the constructive movement. Higher freight rates would also do much to revive general industry as they would place the common carriers in possession of increased funds with which to purchase materials.

A general reduction in the wages of railway employees has been talked about and would undoubtedly be a source of much greater relief to the common carriers than higher freight rates, but the possibility of lower wages is doubted in view of the attitude of the administration toward reduction in wages.

OIL-O-MATIC BURNERS' APPEARANCE IMPROVED

W. M. Timmons, of Randall Brothers, Inc., local authorized representative of the Williams Oil-O-Matic Heating Corporation, reports that many people buying oil burners use the same care shown in selecting their furniture, because, more than likely, it will fit into a basement which is made livable and attractive as the rooms above basement in which the

It was back in 1927 that the Williams Oil-O-Matic Heating Corporation anticipated this trend in the home. During that year the Williams Model "J" Oil-O-Matic was introduced. It incorporated all the basic principles of Oil-O-Matic operation, but in a manner which was contrary to the popular idea of oil burners as a mere machine. Although the radical step of manufacturing a designed oil burner required a huge investment in tools and dies, Mr. Timmons says that Oil-O-Matic officials have since had proof enough of the soundness of the step. Oil-O-Matic Junior, the smaller Oil-O-Matic, conforms to the level standards of beauty and engineering skill as the larger model.

Mr. Timmons quoted one instance of a house owner who purchased one of the red chromium-plated Oil-O-Matic Juniors, installed it in a black and red boiler and made a livable basement room in which the cold scheme matched the heating plant. This was even carried out to red tile floors.

A recent basement improvement contest staged by one of the leading magazines of the country, Oil-O-Matic owners captured well over half the total prize money.

Randall Brothers, Inc., is located at 2158 Piedmont road, where an attractive display is constantly maintained. "Are you?" says Mr. Timmons, "most of the interest centers on the new Model 'K' Oil-O-Matic, which is designed for smaller homes."

"This new, smaller burner represents several years of research and experiment on the part of Williams engineers. It is extremely quiet and this feature is being featured in current advertising under the name 'Hushed Heat'."

An announcement of whether the court will adhere to the former decision is considered likely.

A similar ruling is expected upon the decisions denying citizenship to Dr. Douglas Clyde Macintosh, Yale professor, and Marie A. Bland, New York nurse, because of their refusal to agree without reservation to take up arms in case of war.

Rehearings have been asked in these cases and several others, among them the ruling sustaining the authority of the California railroad commission to require the Santa Fe and other railroads to construct a union station at Los Angeles.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Whittling day rolls around tomorrow for the supreme court. It will decide what cases will be reviewed from among the many petitions put before it during the summer recess.

Shutting the court's review of justices held to the normal average of the last few years, four out of five will be rejected, leaving the litigants to abide by the verdicts of lower courts.

The Indiana chain store tax case, upon which the court ruled against the chains at the last term by a 5-to-4 decision, is expected to come up a sign.
